Haley is a sophomore at Baylor University majoring in Social Work and pursuing Art Therapy. Haley is a very busy young lady and besides working hard towards her degree, she spends time doing extracurricular activities and volunteering for different organizations. Last summer she was part of the Baylor University missions team that went on a “community development” mission trip to serve the people of Ghana, Africa through their schools and an orphanage. She was also a part of the New Student Programs Summer 2014 where she volunteered as camp leader at Baylor Line Camp for incoming freshman.

She has been involved in the Temple Bible Church Backyard Bible Clubs as team captain leading a group of six youth group members to reach out to the children of the community through skits, games, and bible stories; she also helped out at High Point Fellowship Middle School Camp in 2012 as a cabin leader and camp photographer for local youth group’s middle school fellowship. Last but not least, Haley is a mentor for the Knights of Heroes Camp for Children of Fallen Heroes, a camp designated for daughters of fallen soldiers challenging and leading them through both physical and mental activities.

Her father, CW-3 Michael Hartwick, was killed in action on April 1st, 2006 when his Apache Helicopter was shot down by enemy fire while conducting a combat air patrol mission in Iraq during OIF.
